I know this is not the proper place for this suggestion but here it is anyway. There are so many closed roads in this state during hunting season. I am 57 yrs old and so is my wife we have lived in Montana for over 35 yrs. Hunted fished camped and enjoying the outdoors but we are not spring chickens anymore. We don't mind walking to hunt. It is the game recovery that is the problem. Allowing the use of motorized vehicles for game recovery only would go a long way toward the overcrowding problem I keep seeing in these surveys. We hunt closer to the vehicle because we would not be able to get the game out if we got something.

Please provide comment on the recommendation to Improve Accessibility to the FWP Videos, Programs, PSA's, etc. that Promote the Desired Behaviors between Landowners and Hunters.

Dear FWP and the Elk Management Citizen Advisory Group -

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on your 'Improve Accessibility to the FWP Videos, Programs, PSAs, etc. that Promote the Desired Behaviors between Landowners and Hunters' proposal.

The Montana Chapter of Backcountry Hunters & Anglers supports the implementation of improving the accessibility of FWP resources aimed at hunter-landowner relations. This should be an established expectation and efforts ongoing and not something the public would have to remind FWP to do better and more of. Of course, there are other competing communication needs, but FWP has failed to improve the education programs to keep pace with public needs over the last five to ten years. Perhaps a more seasonally designed outreach effort is what is needed here. It seems FWP's website does not change much; it's mostly static.

That said, we believe it's a stretch, perhaps a bit naive, to believe that improving the accessibility to FWP videos or PSAs will improve stakeholder relationships and quality access to harvest elk. The issue is not one of lacking information and education, and we need to make sure we don't inadvertently go down the path of investing in education only in hopes of solving the issue.

Thank you again for the opportunity to comment on your 'Improve Accessibility to the FWP Videos, Programs, PSAs, etc. that Promote the Desired Behaviors between Landowners and Hunters' proposal. We appreciate your careful consideration.

-The Montana Chapter of Backcountry Hunters & Anglers

I agree with Montana BHA - the FWP website is outdated and not user friendly therefore updating content itself on the website will do little. A coordinated seasonal outreach effort would be more effective

Yes, public relations programs with the right messages for landowners and hunters can change ideas and behaviors. But will this work because the current website FWP Hunt Planner is down and there was the licenses APP disaster. I have seen the FWP billboards and you did to do much more to promote the TIP-MONT line.

While we support this effort and believe that the Landowner/Hunter relationship is vital to ensuring Montana's hunting heritage, we remind the agency that this is the work that various conservation-oriented, non-profit organizations do as well. We suggest partnering with these non-profits groups to help design a program that builds bridges between hunters and landowners, rather than simply task another employee to draft another paper on what can be done in this space.

This is all good and I just want to say that the problem this speaks to is that NO ONE should be finishing hunter or Bowhunter education and not know these really fundamental ethics and landowner relationship skills. If people are getting their hunting license and are clueless about how to behave and talk to landowners then that is major failing of the education system.

FWP should be promoting the public comment periods and meetings more. Making PSAs more accessible is good but time and effort may be more effective elsewhere. While the FWP website is sometimes difficult to navigate, promoting too much information in one place could be too much and the public may lose interest. Determining what is most important information may be a challenge.

This is good but there's a lot of this info out there already-- much of it already exists w FWP and with NGO partners. The trick is getting people to watch it, listen to it, etc. I'd suggest instead of producing new product, money be invested--either in small grants to NGO's or in FWP-- to advertise this info on social media, newspapers, etc.

MWF is neutral on this point. We feel that this effort is better left to outside groups to help promote via various marketing campaigns, etc. It's not necessarily the job of FWP to build the relationship between citizens.

American Prairie supports this proposal. As stated in the internal assessment of this proposal by FWP's Wildlife Division, "anything to increase accessibility and use of outreach products is good."
